

Free Telehealth Resources, Including State Regulations, for Clinicians

The Telehealth Certification Institute (<https://telementalhealthtraining.com>) has a page of free resources for clinicians on its website. The link for this page is <https://telementalhealthtraining.com/all/resources>. Among the information available on this page are state-by-state listings of telehealth regulations, best practice guidelines, ethics considerations when using telehealth and more. There are also resources available on the same page for patients to use in preparation for their telehealth sessions.

The Telehealth Certification Institute also offers training for the board certification in Telemental health (BC-TMH) as well as continuing education and other helpful items (some trainings may be free, others, like certification training, are not.) They are acknowledged by the NY State Education Department (NYSED) as providers of continuing education for social workers.

This is not an endorsement of the Telemental Health Institute by the New York State Society for Clinical Social Work. It is merely offered for the purpose of information to our members.

Jay E. Korman, MSW, LCSW, BC-TMH, Practice Management Chair 11/30/02023